The [re]port of a dis... in Phi[la]delphia's treasury is... to draw. It is the only ... who ha[ve] had his ... the McKinley bill ... into effect.

In the Sp...on of the New York World ... difference bet... Bardsley and ... before his offense ... outlawed by time and ... therefore suffer punishment.

The ... development in the case of "Honest" John Bardsley is that he deliberately robbed the State of nearly half a million dollars of school money—the State's appropriation to the city of Philadelphia.

"HONEST" JOHN BARDSLEY, Philadelphia's "protection" city treasurer, says he is preparing a complete statement of all he knows to read in court when called up for sentence. This announcement will cause anxiety in many Philadelphia bosoms.

As far as now ascertained, the public money lost or stolen by City Treasurer John Bardsley, of Philadelphia, amounts in round numbers to two millions and a half dollars. A part of this loss falls upon the State, the greater part of it upon Philadelphia.

THE Supreme Court has decided that the Philadelphia city councils did not have the right to select a successor to "Honest" John Bardsley, the City Treasurer. Richard Oellers is thus ousted from the office and the appointment of W. Redford Wright by Governor Pattison is sustained.

THE law known as the company store law, passed by the recent Legislature, was signed by Governor Pattison last week Wednesday. The law prohibits mining and manufacturing corporations from engaging in the business of carrying on stores, known as company stores or general supply stores.

GOVERNOR PATTISON wants the department clerks at Harrisburg to earn their money. He has vetoed an appropriation item of $12,000 for the employment of draughtsmen to copy old documents in the Internal Affairs Department, for the very satisfactory reason that "there are sufficient clerks now to do the work."

Again now the startling intelligence is received from Washington that the Treasury vaults are unsafe. This is no secret. The vaults have been unsafe since Harrison was inaugurated, hence the reason for the disappearance of that big surplus of $100,000,000. In all probability the vaults are safe enough now, as they do not contain more than enough to enable Uncle Sam to make change.

THE "squealing" gambler, the Prince of Wales, is unhappy because nearly the entire London press is united in severe editorial criticism of the Prince and his now notorious connection with the baccarat scandal. No more scathing commands have been devoted by the newspapers to any public personage in Great Britain since the acknowledged moral ruin of Parnell was scathingly treated in print.

BREAD and water is the diet of the blacklisted miners in the coke region. Great suffering is predicted. This sounds a little strange, doesn't it? Bread and water, the only food for starving miners in the most highly "protected" State in the Union. Perhaps after a time the poor dupes who voted for protection will learn that this is extended to the millionaire operators, but not to the men who dig the coal. There is no duty on imported "pauper labor."

THE United States Treasury is practically bankrupt, according to Washington dispatches. It could not pay the money now due on pension accounts without more than exhausting all the cash in the Treasury, including the fractional currency, the money deposited in the National Banks, and the small balance on hand of the redemption fund. In all probability before the end of the present year the Government will again be a borrower. If this is true of two years of absolute Republican control, what could have been expected at the expiration of Harrison's term, had not the people called a halt?

ATTORNEY GENERAL HENSEL doesn't propose that the State shall lose $1,000,000 through the dishonesty of Philadelphia's Treasurer, John Bardsley, without making a strong effort to recover the amount. He now proposes to hold the city responsible for the $1,000,000 lost by "Honest" John Bardsley in his peculations. The State officials claim that the Mayor and City Solicitor have assumed that the city is responsible for the money by the various suits they have instituted against Bardsley for the misappropriation of State funds. They point to the fact that not a dollar of city money has been misappropriated by Bardsley, he having confined all his peculations to the funds known as State money, and city will not admit that they have assumed the responsibility for State money. They contend that they have only a virtual due deposit in part of the city's equity in the guarantee fund. There will be a big legal battle before the matter is settled, as the city will fight the case to the very end before it will pay the $1,000,000 lost by John Bardsley.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup

FOR CHILDREN TEETHING

Some day, some day, we know not when,
Perchance the sun may shine from skies of blue,
Through every vein will summer on that day,
Once more life's perfect youth will all come true.

Once more my perfect youth, all nothing lack,
I shut my eyes, think how 'twill be—

Of dear face dark separating sea:
And glance to glance, and hand to hand in hand

PINNED HER TO THE GROUND.

Richard N. Tyrrell, in the Mail, was the foreman of a jury trying a case of assault with intent to kill. He was last seen when the jury left the court room to consider their verdict. The interesting incident that occurred in 1862.
